NBA TRIVIA

- In 1993, a special Larry Bird edition of Wheaties appeared on Boston supermarket shelves to commemorate his retirement from the sport ... Supposedly an exclusive for local Celtics fans, that didn't stop residents of Terre Haute, Indiana (Bird's hometown) from making the 15-hour drive to pick up a couple as souvenirs; one fellow - Pete Gallagher of Midwest Sports - was able to grab a total of 800 boxes, with the idea of selling them back home for 15 bucks apiece (no word on whether he was able to turn a profit).
- Q: How do you explain the claim that a basketball player's hearing isn't as keen at the end of a game as at the beginning?

A: Light exercise sharpens the hearing, strenuous exercise dulls it.
